

3rd National Conference The Future of Apprenticeships

Thursday 7th April 2011, Westminster Studios, London SW1

Speakers include:

Keith Smith
Central Director of Operations,
National Apprenticeship Service

Lee Davies
Deputy Chief Executive,
Institute for Learning

Phil Hatton HMI
National Advisor, Ofsted

Carol Taylor
Director of Operations,
The National Institute of Adult
Continuing Education (NIACE)

Supported by:

With every opportunity comes a challenge and despite recent governmental commitments to generate apprenticeship opportunities, FE, HE and business alike are still awaiting effective guidance in a number of crucial areas.

This conference, the third in its series, will look to best practice in apprenticeship delivery. Attendees will get the opportunity to hear from sector leaders, academics and the Government, who will inform on best practice and future policy developments.

A must-attend for FE and HE providers, small to medium-sized businesses, trade associations and all those aiming to increase apprenticeship opportunities and employer engagement.

Purpose of the Conference:

Specifically, attending this conference will enable you to:

- Look to the future of apprenticeships under the coalition government
- Discover how best to access funding and encourage employers to contribute
- Explore the Common Inspection Framework in apprenticeships and hear who is rating well and why
- Discuss the impact of Local Enterprise Partnerships on apprenticeships
- Assess how best to meet governmental targets through the successful engagement of employers
- Challenge pre-conceived ideas of the stereotypical apprentice and look to initiatives to utilise recently announced government funding to roll out apprenticeship programmes for the 19-30 age group
- Assess the issues around the demand for apprenticeship programmes in light of the current economic climate and the removal of Programme Led Apprenticeships
- Discover how best to engage with vulnerable young people
- Hear first hand accounts from apprentices and business alike on how apprenticeships have benefited them
- Discuss how best to improve the quality of career guidance within schools to ensure that every young person is provided with the information required to make an informed choice
- Assess the best measures in recruitment to reduce the risk of drop-outs
- Explore the role of apprenticeships in providing an alternative route to higher education
- Explore best practice from FE institutions that have successfully developed and delivered new models in apprenticeships
- Benefit from hearing best practice on regional successes, good news stories and gain practical information to implement in your day-to-day role through interactive seminars examining key issues on:
 - > Building your own apprenticeship programme
 - > Apprentices for the over 25's
