Why you must attend this event:

- Hear from the Mayor of London's Commissioner for Sport on harnessing the power of sport to transform the lives of disadvantaged young people
- Learn from Sport England the future of youth and community sport - 2012 and beyond
- Explore with Rory Underwood MBE, how a true partnership approach can improve the opportunities and outcomes for children and young people
- Examine the changing structure of local government and how to align sports with social care and children's services
- Discuss how to forge partnerships between schools, local authorities and the community sector
- Maximum learning value – watch the conference again online! All delegates receive post-event access to watch speaker presentations via the Policy Review TV service, AND can download all conference papers

With the squeeze in public finances, the sports provision sector is tasked with the opportunity to look for new and more efficient ways to deliver high quality, meaningful sporting activity for children and young people.

This 6th national conference will bring together local authority heads of service with key delivery partners and national development agencies to discuss their roles within the new structure of sports provision for children and young people. It will provide delegates with the opportunity to focus resources on what really is important.
