Experience Works 2010

17.00 – 19.00 Monday 4 October 2010
The Octagon

One of the main things we get asked in the first few weeks of Autumn Term is what job opportunities are available on campus, and if you aren't asking this question perhaps you should be!

Working or volunteering on campus while you are studying can help you build a range of skills that you can add to your CV when applying for any an internship or position once you leave Queen Mary.

We've invited a range of departments offering paid work, and voluntary positions to this event to give you a taste of what is on offer for the 2010-11 academic year.

Don't forget we also have an online vacancy system called JobOnline, which caters for all types of vacancy, and new for this academic year features a search function for you to find local and campus based opportunities based on searching by Post Code.

How can I make my CV more effective?

Tip of the Week

The Internet is a remarkable source of information. It can provide useful information about all aspects of life including information specific to job-hunting. It is also an increasingly popular medium for employers when recruiting.
In job hunting information is a vital tool. For example, when searching for information about work or study outside the UK, the Internet is an inexpensive way to gather the most appropriate information. Having said all this, using the Internet should
